Ashada at Hill Temple

- Chief Minister to offer prayers tomorrow
- Entry tickets available at Lalitha Mahal Helipad and Chamundeshwari Temple
- Private vehicles banned on four Ashada Fridays
- Free bus service from Helipad

Mysuru, July 19 (MTY&DM)- With thousands of devotees from across the State expected to visit Chamundeshwari Temple atop Chamundi Hill on first Ashada Friday tomorrow, the authorities have made all arrangements to ensure that the event passes off smoothly without any hitches.

Speaking to Star of Mysore this morning, Chamundeshwari Temple Executive Officer K.M. Prasad said that adequate drinking water and toilet facilities have been arranged atop the Hill for the devotees.

Four queues for darshan

Explaining the measures taken for facilitating smooth darshan of deity, Prasad said four entry queues will be formed — one for Dharma Darshana; another for devotees with Rs. 50 darshan ticket; third for devotees with Rs. 300 entry ticket along with abhisheka and the fourth one for VIPs and VVIPs. The tickets are available both at Lalitha Mahal Helipad and atop the Hill, he said.

Pointing out that barricades will be placed on both sides of the queues, he said that following frequent complaints of barricade breach, green coloured nets will be erected along the barricades.

He said that private vehicles to the Hill has been banned on all four Ashada Fridays and the KSRTC will operate free bus service from Lalitha Mahal helipad to the Hill temple from 3 in the morning till 9 in the night. Pointing out that the temple may incur an expenditure of upto Rs. 16 lakh for ferrying the devotees from the helipad to the temple, he said that the temple has paid Rs. 5 lakh in advance to KSRTC.

Preparations in full swing atop Chamund Hill to receive CM H.D. Kumaraswamy, who is scheduled to offer special puja as part of first Ashada Friday tomorrow and later offer bagina at KRS.

No Plastic Zone

Highlighting that plastic has been totally banned atop the Hill, Prasad said that those climbing the hill steps should not carry plastic water bottles. The temple has placed drinking water tanks at various points from the foot to the Hill, he said and added that Forest Department personnel will be deployed to ensure the safety of devotees climbing steps, as wild animals roam about in the vicinity.

He said that 6 battery-operated vehicles will be used for ferrying specially abled persons and the aged devotees from Mahishasura statue to the temple.

Chamundeshwari Temple Chief Priest N. Shashishekar Dikshit, speaking to SOM, said that the rituals will commence with abhishekas at 3 am and will go on till 5.30 am, following which the temple will be opened for devotees.

Meanwhile, it is learnt that Higher Education Minister G.T. Devegowda has sponsored flower decoration of the deity and the temple while a devotee from Bengaluru has taken the responsibility of Dasoha (mass feeding) tomorrow.

Action on anti-social acts

During the colonial rule of India, the British authorities sent many activists taking part in the country-wide agitation demanding freedom to Andaman on a one-way trip to be housed in the dreaded cellular cells with no time limit of imprisonment. The measure amounted to deportation of the activists, dubbed by the then administration as anti-government entailing severest punishment. Legend has it that the famed freedom fighter Vinayak Damodar Savarkar, popularly known as Veer Savarkar (1883-1966) jumped into the shark-infested sea waters from the ship in which he was being taken for incarceration in the cellular cell of Andaman. It is the same Andaman which later has turned out to be a much sought-after tourist destination, with the cellular jails preserved as a tourist attraction. Similar to the case of Andaman trip to those indulging in anti-government acts, the administration in the United States of America had set up in 1934 a prison at a distance of two kilometres in the San Francisco Bay Area for jailing those committing the most heinous crimes, from where escape was sure to be fatal in the ice-cold waters of the Bay.

The practice of banishing persons violating the then unwritten codes of good conduct in society seems to have prevailed in times gone-by. The incident narrated in the land's epic Ramayana in which the Lord's consort herself was ordered to move out of the capital Ayodhya is a classic example of that pro-society practice. Ironically, persons indulging in despicable acts nowadays can be seen all over the land.

The practice of ordering some legal residents to move out of a defined territory under the model code stipulated by the Election Commission of India on occasions of polls to the Legislative bodies may not amount to either banishing or deportation. The restriction applies to certain category of politicos, mainly to ensure an election process free from foul practices. While the administration has taken steps towards reining in the anti-social elements indulging in a multitude of acts disturbing order in society, its machinery engaged on implementing those steps seems to be overwhelmed by the burden of the task showing no signs of abating.

Whether the land hosts more number of law-abiding people than the other kind, the influence of the latter sections is the crux of the matter. In this context, the just reported banning of an ill-behaving film actor from entering Hyderabad should make every law-abiding citizen sit up and urge administrations across the country to emulate the laudable step. The evil elements cannot be dealt with half measures and political interference.

EDITOR'S BOTTOMLINE

Privacy is shrinking into a tiny little disc of no consequence. She got the middle seat on the flight stuck between two men. No choices. Sat down and saw the man in the aisle seat fiddling with his mobile phone. Her eye fell on the screen and it was her picture on it. Taken aback, she said, excuse me, what do you think you are doing, are you on my Facebook page? He said, yes, your face was familiar, so I was checking you out. How dare you, she said angrily, how do you know my name? It is on your boarding pass, he said pleasantly, right here where you placed it in the pocket of the seat in front. But you cannot do this, she protested, I am going to call the crew and they will call the cops. Be my guest, he said, call anyone you want, I am not breaking any laws. You are harassing me. No, I am not, I am just checking out some information, look lady, I didn't put you on Facebook or send you an indecent proposal, you put yourself there because you wanted people to see you, that's what I am doing, seeing your page. But we are strangers, you cannot just do this, it is so wrong. Why is it OK if I do it from a thousand miles away but so terrible in the seat next to you, it is the same thing, only a question of perception. — Bikram Vohra in The Times of India.

Intricate artworks from soap bars

Venice: Daniele Barresi, a 26-year-old world champion food sculptor has sculpted soap bars into intricate artworks using a simple food sculpting knife.

Barresi, at age 7, was already carving fruits and vegetables and his skills improved as he grew and practiced. Five years later, his other passion, cooking, led him to the IPSSAR of Villa San Giovanni "Professional Cook Institute", where he was able to use his artistic talents to graduate with a score of 88/100. It was here that he discovered his talent for sculpting various foods into detailed works of art.

While his various food carvings are certainly impressive, his soap masterpieces are even better. "When I touch my knife, my mind gives up to the heart and it transmits directly, to the hands, giving different forms to the decorations," he says.

VOICE OF THE READER

Hima has become a role model for all of us

Sir,

In an extremely depressing political atmosphere in Karnataka when our Chief Minister Kumaraswamy sheds copious tears unable to withstand the buffeting pressure from all sides, in a stark contrast is the case of a young 18-year-old athlete Hima Das from Assam, who had no less a pressure to perform at world stage, showed extraordinary courage, determination and guts to win gold in the prestigious 400m run that make us all shed tears of joy.

KBG has rightly chosen the topic for his Abracadabra under the title 'An appreciation: Who is she? (SOM dated July 16). Hima says: "I will try to give my best at the Asian Games. I don't run after medals, I run after time."

She had also inspired one admirer to come up with a moving piece in Kannada which had been promptly reproduced by KBG in his column.

Hima will be a role model for all youngsters. Another important attribute about her is in the beginning of the run she greeted the huge assemblage with our traditional greetings of Namaskara and she also did not forget to exhibit the same gesture after winning. These are the gracious gestures that make India proud. This graciousness was also exhibited by P.V. Sindhu during Olympic badminton championship final towards the winner when she was down on the court by picking her racquet and handing it over to her and putting arms around her that attracted cheers.

Hale Unduwadi Drinking Water Project

GTD asks officials to do survey, speed-up land acquisition

Mysuru, July 19 (PM&BCT)- Higher Education Minister and Chamundeshwari MLA G.T. Devegowda (GTD) has asked officials to take up the survey for Hale Unduwadi Drinking Water Project that is in a limbo due to land tangle between government agencies.

It is GTD's pet project and it had recently got a boost when Chief Minister H.D. Kumaraswamy released an initial funding of Rs. 50 crore when he presented the Budget. This project aims at getting Cauvery water from KRS backwaters instead of the present practice of lifting water from the canals. The project is designed to take care of Mysuru's water needs at least for 100 years.

In his budget speech, Kumaraswamy announced that in order to permanently eradicate drinking water problem of Mysuru and 92 villages, Hale Unduwadi scheme will be implemented at an estimated cost of Rs. 540 crore. Once the project is implemented, the city and its neighbouring villages will get 300-350 Million Litres per Day (MLD) water from River Cauvery. This would be in addition to 250 MLD being supplied to the city at present.

Now the Minister has asked officials to take up the survey and speed-up the land acquisition process. At a meeting to review developmental works at Chamundeshwari Constituency held on Tuesday at Senate Bhavan in Manasagangothri, the Minister said that the CM had granted Rs. 50 crore. "This is an initial funding and the government's expression of interest to take up the project. Officials should go ahead with the survey works," the Minister said.

Minister G.T. Devegowda chairing a meeting of officials at Senate Bhavan in Manasagangothri recently to review developmental works at Chamundeshwari Constituency.

The main hurdle for the project is the deadlock between the Karnataka Industrial Area Development Board (KIADB), Mysuru City Corporation (MCC), Mysuru Urban Development Authority (MUDA) and Karnataka Urban Water Supply and Drainage Board (KUWSDB) as the KIADB has sanctioned the land to a realtor and the government has to intervene and annul the allotment.

The KIADB wing of Mandya acquired 290 acres of land at Beechanakuppe — including the 90-acre land that was meant for the Hale Unduwadi project — and allotted to a realtor to build a satellite township. After the land acquisition, KIADB created sites in the vicinity and sold a large chunk of it to the realtor.

On the other hand, the realtor has paid the amount for the sanctioned land and was legally on solid grounds. Only a Cabinet decision can rescind the sale. The Cabinet can direct KIADB to cancel the sale and identify and allot another plot to the realtor as the drinking water project is for the larger benefit of Mysuru.

Of the Rs. 540 crore meant for the project, Rs. 36 crore will be spent on land acquisition. GTD's order to conduct a survey is significant as it conveys to officers that the government will clear all hurdles for the long-pending drinking water project.

Monsoon fury: Cauvery Nisargadhama at Talakad closed for visitors

Mysuru, July 19 (MTY&DM)- With Cauvery and Kapila rivers flowing above danger level due to incessant rains for over a week, the authorities have shut Cauvery Nisargadhama at Talakad in T. Narasipur taluk for the public.

As the outflow from KRS reservoir and Kabini dam have been increased due to heavy rains, the released water has entered Cauvery Nisargadhama thus forcing the authorities to close it.

A large number of tourists from Mysuru and Bengaluru visit the Sangama near T. Narasipur and would like to enjoy water-sport. But as the water is flowing above the danger level, the Forest Department Officials have closed the Nisargadhama for the tourists.

The officials, apart from erecting barricades at the road that connects Talakad and the river, have also taken measures to ensure that no one walks to the river bed.

Deputy Commissioner Abhiram G. Sankar reviewing the security measures at Talakad.

DC inspects spot

Even as the rising water levels have become a concern for the authorities and the members of the public and tourists alike, Mysuru Deputy Commissioner (DC) Abhiram G. Sankar visited Talkad and reviewed the security measures taken for ensuring public safety.

He directed the officials to ensure that the tourists and the public are not put to hardship.

Forest Officer M.S. Umesh, guards Mahadevaiah, Lokesh and others were present during the DC's visit.

Meanwhile, Forest Department Officials and Police personnel have been guarding the road leading to Cauvery Nisargadhama to ensure that the public do not venture into the overflowing river.

Four treasure-seekers arrested

Villagers beat them black and blue before handing them over to Police

Nagamangala, July 19 (KS)- Four persons, who were allegedly digging the ground thinking that there was treasure inside, were caught hold by the villagers of Kanchanahalli, who reportedly thrashed them before handing them over to Bellur Police.

The arrested have been identified as Chikkegowda, an ex-serviceman and a resident of Kanchanahalli, Babu, Mahesh and Gangahanumaiah, all residents of Bengaluru.

It is learnt that Chikkegowda was told by someone that there was treasure hidden inside his farmland and believing it, Chikkegowda summoned a priest and four others to the village.

The treasure seekers had marked the place to be dug and performed puja to the ground before they began to dig the place. The villagers, suspecting something fishy, caught hold of them and began to thrash them during which the priest managed to escape.

The villagers then brought the four persons to Bellur Police Station and handed over them. It is learnt that the same persons had made similar attempts to dig treasure earlier. Bellur Police, who visited the spot, are investigating.

Wheel detaches from moving KSRTC bus

Close shave for passengers

Chamarajanagar, July 19 (SS &KS)- About 40 passengers, travelling in a KSRTC bus to Mysuru from Chamarajanagar, had a close shave when a rear wheel got detached from the moving bus near Badanakuppe village in the taluk yesterday.

The KSRTC bus (KA-10 F-0140) left for Mysuru from Chamarajanagar at about 1.15 pm and when the bus crossed Badanakuppe village, the driver saw a wheel moving at full speed in front of the bus and immediately stopped the bus.

When he got down and inspected the wheels of the bus he saw one of the left side rear wheels had got separated. Luckily, no loss of life or injuries took place. Meanwhile, the passengers, who got down from the bus inspected the other rear wheel on the left side and noticed that the tyre was nearly 80% damaged.

They then began to curse the KSRTC officials for their negligence in allowing the bus with damaged tyre to ferry passengers and for playing with the lives of passengers. The passengers then took another bus to reach their destinations.

Youth meets watery grave while clicking selfie atop bridge

K.R. Pet, July 19 (KS)- A 28-year-old youth, who was clicking selfies atop the bridge connecting Hariharapura and Akkihebbalu in the taluk, met his water grave after he slipped and fell into the river on Tuesday evening.

Shivakumar

The deceased has been identified as Shivakumar, son of Ganesh and a resident of Hariharapura village.

As the dam built across River Hemavathi in Gorur had reached its maximum, the authorities had released about 30,000 cusecs of water to the river resulting in the river reaching the danger level and flowing in full force.

Shivakumar, who went to see it, tried to click selfies on his mobile phone standing on the bridge during which he accidentally slipped and fell into the river and was washed away.

Fire and Emergency Services Personnel, who rushed to the spot, have launched a search to fish out the body.

Tahsildar Shivamurthy, Rural Police SI Girish and others, who visited the spot, took all measures to fish out the body of the youth.

K.R. Pet Rural Police, who have registered a case in this regard, are investigating.

A litany of woes at Maharani's College leaves GTD fuming

Mysuru, July 19 (RKB&BCT)- Higher Education Minister G.T. Devegowda (GTD) yesterday visited Maharani's Arts and Science College for Women in the city and took the authorities to task over poor amenities. Pouring out their woes, students told the Minister that their college does not have basic facilities like good toilets and drinking water. "We neither have rest rooms nor adequate classrooms and laboratories," they complained.

The students said that they had staged many protests on their campus and even near the Deputy Commissioner's office demanding facilities but authorities have turned a deaf ear.

Hearing many complaints from the students, an irked Minister said that students have taken the trouble of contacting him directly to air their problems. "Some students have told me that despite many complaints and representations, the College management was least bothered to solve them and these problems were present since years. If the facilities were good and if the college management really cared for the students, complaints would not have reached me," Devegowda said.

Inspecting the college campus, toilets academic and staff blocks, the Minister, who was accompanied by Chamaraja MLA L. Nagendra, MCC Commissioner K.H. Jagadeesha and MUDA Superintending Engineer Suresh Babu, took stock of the facilities. Physics and Chemistry lecturers told the Minister that there were around 2,500 students but have only three Science Labs.

At the College auditorium, students poured out their woes to the Minister, who patiently heard their grievances on inadequate basic facilities. They complained about non-release of Vidyasiri scholarships. The students also sought to know whether the government was committed to provide free bus passes to them.

Expressing displeasure against the authorities, including the Principal, Devegowda warned of strict action if they fail to protect the interest of the students. He warned Joint Director for Collegiate Education Udayashankar and in-charge Principal Srinivas of sending (transfer) them to Ballari if they fail to take adequate measures.

The Minister directed the College management to arrange additional classrooms as there was a scarcity for rooms. Later, GTD told reporters that he was apprised of the situation and was convinced about the problems faced by the students.

"I have asked for immediately establishing an electronically operated eco-friendly toilet before other measures were taken. Drinking water problem and the shortage of lecturers will also be addressed," the Minister said.

Syndicate nominations

The State government has decided to withdraw the nominations made by the previous government to the Syndicates of State-run Universities. The Syndicate is the highest decision-making body of any University.

GTD said that the government would appoint the new members of academic bodies such as Syndicates and those appointed by the previous regime had been terminated.

Responding to reporters' questions on the letter written by former CM Siddharamaiah asking for retention of the members of Syndicates and other academic bodies appointed by him, GTD said the opinion of the former CM would be taken into consideration while making the new appointments. He said he would also discuss the matter with the CM and the Dy.CM.

Free bus pass

Call for college bandh on July 21

Mysuru, July 19- The All India Democratic Youth Organisation (AIDYO), in association with All India Mahila Samskrutika Sanghatane (AIMSS) and All India Democratic Students Organisation (AIDSO) has given a call to all educational institutions in the State to observe a bandh on July 21 urging the coalition Government to issue free bus pass for students.

AIDYO District President Harish said that CM H.D. Kumaraswamy (HDK) had stated in the Budget that free bus pass for students which was implemented by the previous Congress Government will be continued. But the new Government has failed to do so and is delaying to issue free pass to students. Hence, a State-wide bandh had been called, he said.

AIDSO District Secretary Chandrakala said the Government's statement that free bus pass to students will lead to financial burden to Transport Department is misleading.

No golden run for KSTDC in Golden Chariot

- State's luxury train accumulates losses of Rs. 40 crore
- Train being redesigned; doubtful of operating this Dasara

Mysuru, July 19 (YDS&BCT)- The 'Golden Chariot' operated by Karnataka State Tourism Development Corporation (KSTDC) has been unable to reap golden benefits for KSTDC. Ever since it was launched in March 2008, it has incurred losses of over Rs. 40 crore.

The Golden Chariot's 18 coaches are fitted with modern facilities and the train has seen a gradual dip in revenue collection. With foreign tourists comprising the bulk of travellers, the luxury train only boasts of 30 percent to 40 per cent occupancy per trip.

The issue was raised yesterday when Tourism Minister S.R. Mahesh visited the Ashokapuram Railway Workshop in city. The government is coming up with an attractive train design with more facilities and thinking of devising attractive packages to attract tourists. "The design work is being undertaken at Ashokapuram Workshop.

"On an average, it is Rs. 4 crore losses every year. The service of Golden Chariot is suspended since the train is getting a makeover with new interiors. We are working on plans to make the train attractive for tourists, and generating more revenue with the same tariff will be our priority once the train gets the makeover and its operations resume," the Minister said.

"The occupancy is less though the train passes through many heritage places, from Hampi to Mysuru. The high haulage charges imposed by the Railways are more than the train's net revenue," the Minister said and added that the KSTDC is paying between Rs. 50 lakh and Rs. 55 lakh per trip as haulage charges to the Railways.

Kumar Pushkar, Managing Director of KSTDC, said that there were some technical problems including air-conditioning, fitting of bio toilets and replacing glass sheet with clear glass. The train is undergoing overhauling and the design will be changed. We'll be re-branding the Golden Chariot, he said. "Normally, the Golden Chariot service starts during Dasara. But this time, it is doubtful as the overhauling works have to be completed," he said.

Shiroor Mutt Seer dies

The Seer was immediately rushed to a local hospital and later shifted to Kasturba Hospital.

The Shiroor Seer, who ascended the Paryaya Peetha for the third time in 2010-12, was in the news recently over the issue of idols of presiding deities of his Mutt. The Seer had given the idols of the presiding deities of his Mutt to Ishapriya Tirtha Swami, junior Seer of Admar Mutt, few months ago, for keeping at the sanctum sanctorum of Sri Krishna Mutt as the former was ill.

After his recovery, he sought the idols. But the Seers of the six of the Ashta Mutts refused to hand over the idols and put a condition that the Shiroor Seer should appoint a junior Seer. This was not acceptable to the Shiroor Seer, who even threatened to file a criminal case on the issue on July 16.

Meanwhile, Ravikiran Murdeshwara, advocate to Seer of Shiroor Mutt said the Seer had expressed fears to his life since he was planning to go against the Seers of Ashta Mutts.

"He had come my office on June 22 and for about two hours, he discussed with me about the happenings in Udupi Mutt. He had also expressed threat to his life," he told reporters this morning.

The Seer was initiated into 'Sanyasa Ashrama' at the age of eight years. He performed three Paryayas (1978-80, 1994-96) and 2010-12) at the Sri Krishna Mutt/Temple during his 47 years as head of the Shiroor Mutt. He was also known for decorating the idol of Lord Krishna at the Sri Krishna Mutt/Temple in different styles in a beautiful manner.

He also knew swimming, played drums and was trained in karate. He played drums with the noted drummer Sivamani at Shiroor just a month ago, with whom he was planning to start a music school. A foundation stone for it was laid last month.

The protesters after reaching the DC's Office, staged a protest for some time and later handed over the memorandum to an official.

Miscreants, who had looted a house in Mysuru, arrested in Tumakuru

The accused, in the guise of MCC officials, had stolen gold ornaments and cash from a house in Kuvempunagar

Mysuru, July 19 (KS)- Tumakuru Tilak Park Police have arrested three persons, who had looted gold ornaments and cash from a house in Kuvempunagar 'N' Block in city on June 22, this year.

The Tumakuru Police, who were searching for the accused persons for their involvement in another case, arrested them. During interrogation, the accused are said to have confessed looting gold and cash from a house in Mysuru by posing themselves as MCC officials.

To confirm the same, Tumakuru Tilak Park Police Sub-Inspector Lakshaiah and staff, who arrived in Mysuru with the photographs of those arrested yesterday, went to the house from where the accused had stolen jewels and cash and showed the house owner K.G. Leeladevi the photographs of those arrested to identify them and Leeladevi confirmed that it was the same people who had come to her house posing as MCC officials and had decamped with cash and jewels.

The Tumakuru Police told Leeladevi that they were bringing the accused to Mysuru on July 19 (today) for her to identify them. But Leeladevi told them that she along with her daughter Chethana were going to Tumakuru on July 19 to Chethana's house there and they themselves would come to the Police Station for identification process.

Meanwhile, Leeladevi and her daughter, who left Mysuru for Tumakuru this morning, have reached the Police Station where they have identified the accused who had looted the house.

It may be recalled that on June 22 at about 11.30 am, three unidentified persons who came to the house of Leeladevi, told them that they were from the MCC and wanted to take the measurement of the house to issue Property Card.

After taking the measurement of the ground floor, two of them took Leeladevi and her maid Mangalamma to the terrace to take the measurement, while another person, who was on the ground floor, had stolen gold ornaments weighing about 280 grams and Rs.8,000 cash.

When the three persons left on their bikes, they began to look back, which made Leeladevi suspicious about them following which she went inside the house and found that they had decamped with cash and jewels kept in the house.

All about the shoes, not the uniform

Hundreds of students from St. Joseph's First Grade College at Jayalakshmipuram staged a flash protest this morning against the directive of the College Management to wear a particular type of shoes to go with the uniform. The students came on to the busy street in front of the College and blocked traffic for some time. They said that while they had no objection to the College rule of compulsory uniform, the Management could not force them to wear a particular type of shoes. Following the protest, Jayalakshmipuram Police rushed to the spot and convinced the students to return to the campus and sort out the shoe issue with the College Principal and Management.

Truckers to go on strike from tomorrow

Mysuru, July 19 (RKB&BCT)- The Mysuru unit of Federation of Karnataka State Lorry Owners & Agents Association will extend support to the transporters' nationwide indefinite strike from tomorrow (July 20), called by the All India Motor Transport Congress, demanding that the Union Government reduce diesel prices, seeking reduction in third party insurance premium and others.

At a meeting held at Alama Choultry in city this morning, G.R. Shanmugappa, President of the Association, said the strike will be total in Mysuru, Mandya, Kodagu and Chamarajanagar.

Meanwhile, the Mysuru District Truckers Association has said that it would not support the strike as it affects thousands of people who depend on truck transport for their livelihood.

The striking truckers are demanding that the Centre reduce prices of diesel, make transparency and reduction in third-party insurance premium through exemption of Goods and Services Tax (GST) on Trans Pacific Partnership (TPP) and abolish excess commission paid to agents through comprehensive policy.

They are appealing to the Government to issue national permits to buses and tourist vehicles. Shanmugappa claimed that several organisations such as Bus Transport Association, Maxi Cab Association and others have extended their support to the protest. The Association has also demanded that the Union Government implement a 'toll barrier-free India' to make transportation hassle-free on highways.

In the backdrop of nationwide indefinite strike called by truck owners, the Transport Department has established a State-level Task-Force Committee and District-level Task Force in each district to ensure uninterrupted movement of essential commodities.

Decoding Mythology

Dr. Devdutt Pattanaik - Author, Speaker, Illustrator, Mythologist

Fever from Shiva's rage

The Vedas, which are over 3,000 years old, refer to a deity called Rudra who is fierce and feared. Is he the Shiva we know today, the hermit who married Parvati, daughter of the Himalayas? We can only speculate in hindsight. The word Shiva is used for the first time only in the Upanishads. And we hear a clear story of Shiva only in the epic Mahabharata, that reached its final written form in Sanskrit only about 2,000 years ago.

In the Shanti Parva, Yudhishtira asks the dying Bhisma, how did fever come into existence? And in response, Bhisma tells him the story of Daksha's yagna, and how he, in keeping with Vedic practice, refuses to offer Shiva a share of the sacrifice. This angers Shiva's wife, Uma, daughter of the mountains, who argues that he deserves a share. Shiva's anger then takes the form of fever and attacks Daksha as well as the Gods who attend his yagna, even the yagna that tries to escape in the form of a deer. Finally, Shiva is appeased, the yagna is restored, a share offered to Shiva and Shiva distributes his wrath as fever across the universe.

This is the first time we hear the now famous story of Daksha's yagna being destroyed by Shiva. However, here Sati is conspicuous by her absence. Daksha is not Shiva's father-in-law. He is simply the archetypal Vedic priest performing a Vedic ritual without offering a share to Shiva, as was the practice, until Shiva's wife, not Sati but Parvati, protests. Here, there is no reference to Sati's suicide or Shiva's outrage and the heartbreak that follows, or any reference to Sati's body being cut up to give rise to the Shakti Peethas.

The story is retold differently in the very next section of the Mahabharata itself when Janmejaya asks Vaisampayana to elaborate the story Bhisma narrated. In this elaboration, Shiva and Parvati both get angry and their anger takes the form of Virabhadra and Mahakali who proceed to destroy Daksha's yagna. The Rishi Dadichi alone protests the refusal to offer Shiva a share of the offerings in Daksha's yagna. Peace is restored when Shiva is accommodated.

Here, we do not get a description of Shiva except through the insults of Daksha — that he is associated with inauspicious things, ghosts and crematoriums. It is much later in the Puranas that we visualise him as ash-smeared with matted hair and snakes around his body, and as the heartbroken husband of Sati. Kalidasa in Kumarasambhava informs us 1,700 years ago how Shiva burnt Kamadeva, frightening Indra. In the Devi Bhagavata Purana, dated to 1,400 years ago, we first hear of Sati's body being linked to Shakti Peethas, and thus pilgrimage spots. In the Bhagvata Purana, that reached its final form 1,000 years ago, we have the most elaborate version of Shiva's story, where we learn that Shiva's indifference to Vedic rules leads to the conflict between Daksha and Shiva.

Those who see mythology as proto-history believe that as Vedic practices waned, and temple-based Agama traditions rose, followers of Vedas became closely associated with Vishnu worshippers. Vishnu was identified with the yagna and was seen as 'preserver' of the yagna and protector of Brahma, the 'creator' of the yagna. They both opposed Shiva who was the 'destroyer' of the yagna. Conflict probably took place in the Himalayan region at the point where Ganga leaves the mountains and enters the plains. The rivalry is indicated by conflicting names of pilgrim spots there such as Hari-dvar (doorway to Vishnu) also known as Hara-dvar (doorway to Shiva).

From Russia, with love...

By N.K.A. Ballal,
Retd. Sr. Vice-President, ITDC

When I go for my evening walk, I have to pass KBG's house and sometimes if I see him sitting and reading his own newspaper, I join him for a cup of green tea offered by his ever-smiling wife. On one such recent visit, he casually mentioned that they would be going for a trip to Russia and other nearby countries with his Rotary friends, sometime in September. This brought back memories of my maiden trip to Russia, a communist country then.

Ballal

It was in the early 80s and I was working as a Manager of Madurai Ashok. I got a call from our head quarters that I had been selected to go to Russia for a 7-day trip as part of ITDC delegation. Those days the Ministry of Tourism was trying to popularise tourism by holding "Festivals of India" abroad, wherein folk and traditional dancers and catering experts would be sent. As Russia had been chosen, we a group of 9 catering experts were asked to depart. It was a government delegation so all the visa formalities were completed in a jiffy.

Since Russia was a communist country, the only flight in and out those days was "Aeroflot." Our brief was to go to Russia and coordinate with the Embassy there. Our group consisted of nearly 7 chefs and cooks, who would actually cook Indian food for the so-called festival buffet. The now world famous chef Sanjeev Kapoor of Khana Khazana-fame was also a part of this group. The Indian fare offered on flight was not even passable standard. But no one really cared since we were all thrilled to just go to Russia.

Once we reached Russia, we were escorted to a hotel by the banks of River Volga, walking distance from Kremlin Square. Clean and spotless city. I have forgotten the name of the hotel but it was State-owned and huge. Approximately 2,500 rooms — small rooms with just basics. A huge square building with four receptions, one dining room serving buffets, mainly non-vegetarian. Being a vegetarian I had to manage with bread, cheese, yoghurt, rice and limited fruits. Those days they had a rule, if one kind of ice cream was being served that whole day only that flavour would be available all over the city. Monday, vanilla. Tuesday, strawberry. So if you do not like a particular flavour, tough luck.

A major problem in Russia is the language. They are very polite to Indians. You talk to them, they smile and ask "Raj Kapoor?" They expected all of us to know him in person. A household name in Russia. Several of them even hum the famous song "Mera jhootha hai japani..."

Russians are quantity eaters. We had been briefed that the buffet should have a minimum of two potato dishes and rice and we should be prepared to cook double the quantity of food for the buffet. The Embassy had been briefed to supply us the raw materials and masalas for the food preparation. When we opened the so-called basmati rice bag, we were in for a shock. Plain parmal rice inside! Plain corruption. How does one cook biriyani with parmal rice? The Embassy officials politely told us that we should prepare with whatever was provided.

The three-day festival started. First day, the queue for the food was a mile long. The menu, biriyani with raitha, aloo jeera, jalebis and samosas. The appetite of Russians is seen to be believed. They do not eat. They gorge. Heaps of parmal rice biriyani [which looked like pongal] with raitha, topped with jalebis and samosas on a single plate! The food got over in no time. We had become wiser by the second day and prepared triple the quantity of food.

We had some spare day for sight-seeing. Being a communist country, there is a heavy demand for anything western. If one is wearing a branded jeans/shoes, they openly ask for it and are ready to pay for it too, unfortunately in their currency. If the official rate of exchange for dollars to rouble was 10 rouble to a dollar, the black market rate was at least three times. Every shopkeeper would request for a dollar payment. Since we had been paid our allowances in dollars, we had lots of spare money for shopping. The only thing available for shopping was cut glasses, dolls and dress materials.

Readers must be wondering as to why I gave the headline "From Russia with love" to this article. Last day of my trip, I was left with lots of roubles and I really did not know what to spend it on. Anyway since my better half had asked me to get some dress materials, I went to a shop and got a full roll of a particular material I liked. Back in India, I took out the material with a flourish to open the roll. Usually in the end of the roll, the name of the manufacturer is mentioned. Would you believe, I got a shock of my life when I realised that the dress material I had brought all the way from Russia was manufactured by our own "National Textiles" — from Russia with love!

New Delhi, July 19- India's star javelin thrower Neeraj Chopra comfortably won the gold at the Sotteville Athletics Meet in France, beating a competitive field which included 2012 London Olympics gold-medallist Keshorn Walcott.

Chopra's throw of 85.17m put him way ahead of the field, including Moldova's Andrian Mardare (81.48m) and Lithuania's Edis Matusevicius (79.31m), who finished second and third respectively. Walcott of Trinidad and Tobago came up with a throw of 78.26m, which was only enough for fifth place.

He also won the gold at the Commonwealth Games in Gold Coast earlier this year before breaking the national record with a 87.43m effort at the Doha Diamond League, where he finished fourth.

Entry of women to Sabarimala Temple

SC says denial of entry is against Constitutional mandate

New Delhi, July 19 (UNI)- Observing that the right of a woman to pray was equal to that of a man, the Supreme Court yesterday heard the controversial ban of entry to woman aged between 10 years and 50 years at the Sabarimala Temple in Kerala.

"Your right to pray being a woman is equal to that of a man and it is not dependent on a law to enable you to do that," observed Justice D.Y. Chandrachud. Chief Justice Dipak Misra, while hearing the matter observed, "On what basis you (temple authorities) deny the entry. It is against the Constitutional mandate. Once you open it for public, anybody can go." The temple has refused to allow women of menstruating age to enter the temple.

The hearing began on Tuesday and the Apex Court asked the counsel for petitioners and others to limit their arguments on the questions of reference made by a three-Judge Bench of the Supreme Court last year. The top court had last year asked a Constitutional Bench to examine the legality of the ban on entry of women in the age group of 10-50 at the temple.

The Bench, also comprising Justices R.F. Nariman, A.M. Khanwilkar, and Indu Malhotra, fixed a time limit for the petitioners. The CJI said there is no concept of "private mandirs (temples)." Once a temple is opened, everybody can go and offer prayers. Nobody can be excluded.

The Chief Justice noted that the Sabarimala Temple drew funds from the Consolidated Fund, had people coming from all over the world and thus, qualified to be called a "public place of worship." A batch of petitions has challenged the prohibition on women of a certain age group from entering the Sabarimala Temple.

"In a public place of worship, a woman can enter, where a man can go. What applies to a man, applies to a woman," Chief Justice Misra observed.

The Kerala Government was quick to point out to the Bench that the State supported entry of women into the Sabarimala Temple. In 2016, the State had opposed it in the Supreme Court. Senior advocate Indira Jaising, for the petitioners, argued that "religion is a relationship between you and your creator."

Justice Chandrachud said women and their physiological phenomena are creations of God — If not God, of nature. "A woman is a creation of God, if you don't believe in God, then of nature. Why should this (menstruation) be a reason for exclusion for employment or worship or anything," he said. Justice Nariman said the age notification is was "arbitrary" as it "leaves out the 9-year-old girl and 53-year-old woman who are menstruating."

The Travancore Devaswom Board, which manages the historic temple, had earlier in January made it mandatory for women to carry documents to verify their age in a bid to restrict entry of women aged between 10 years and 50 years.

Honey trap case

Officials of National Human Rights Commission conduct enquiry

Mysuru, July 19 (RK&KS) - The officials of the National Human Rights Commission (NHRC), are conducting enquiry to bring out the truth in the alleged honey trap case which took place in August, 2017 in Mysuru South Rural Police.

The case: The Mysuru Rural Police, based on an information that a lady has been involved in honey trapping cases had registered a case against the lady and had arrested three persons including the lady. Later, the lady lodged a complaint with NHRC stating that a false case of honey trapping was registered against her besides alleging that the Police, after taking custody of her, had disrobed her and had touched her inappropriately.

The NHRC officials, who have taken the complaint of the lady seriously, have begun to conduct enquiry since Tuesday at the Government Guest House. The lady who appeared before the NHRC officials has alleged that the Police had lodged a false case against her and had harassed her mentally and physically.

Yesterday, NHRC officials M.S. Gill, Srivatsava and Mouniya Vipul held an enquiry with Mysuru South Rural Police Inspector Gopalakrishna, SI Jayaprakash and ASI Puneeth and have registered their saying in writing.

It may be recalled that one Puttaswamy had filed a complaint that the lady was involved in honey trapping and based on the complaint, Police had registered a case. But the lady had lodged a complaint with NHRC stating that as she did not co-operate with the illegal trade, Puttaswamy had filed a false complaint against her and the Police, without verifying the facts, had registered a case against her and were harassing.

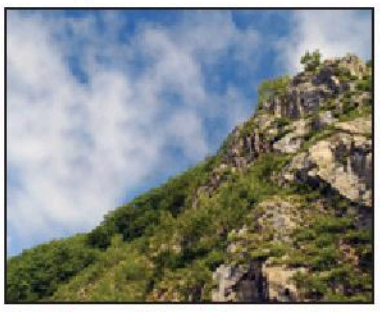
WORD OF THE DAY

Declivity

Pronunciation: dih-KLIV-uh-tee.
Meaning: Downward inclination; a descending slope.



Origin: Three different English words descend from clivus, the Latin word for "slope" or "hill"—with the help of three Latin prefixes. Declivity combines clivus with the prefix de-, meaning "down" or "away." Acclivity uses ad- (which changes its second letter depending on the root word), meaning "to" or "toward." Hence, an acclivity is an upward slope. The third word has a figurative meaning in English: proclivity makes use of the prefix pro-, meaning "forward," and this word refers to a personal inclination, predisposition, or "leaning."
Examples: "Early afternoon finds me off-trail by mistake among fog banks, using both hands and feet to scramble sideways and skyward along a perilously steep, grassy declivity toward the pass of Les Mattes." — Jeffrey Tayler, The National Geographic Traveler, 1 June 2017.
"We make straight for the swimming pool, set in a warm declivity and surrounded by orange-trees." — Alex Preston, Harper's, October 2016

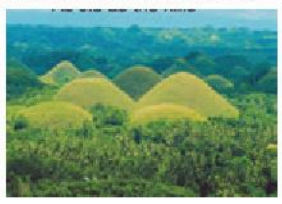
PHRASE OF THE DAY

As old as the hills

Meaning: Exceedingly old.



Origin: The phrase derives from the Bible, Job 15:7. It was alluded to in Miles Coverdale's Bible, 1535:
Art thou the first man, that euer was borne? Or, wast thou made before the hylles?
The phrase in its current form didn't gain use until the 18th century. The first example I can find of that form of words is in Francis Hutchinson's A defence of the antient historians, 1734:
As vales are as old as the hills, so loughs and rivers must be as old as they.
It is quite possible that Hutchinson was making a literal reference to hills and not using the expression in its figurative form. A figurative usage does come not long after however, in The Edinburgh Magazine, 1787:
If an unlucky gamester brought on his papyrus a combination of letters already known, every body abused him saying "That has been already said" - "That is as old as the hills" - "all the world knows that".

QUOTE BOX

After climbing a great hill, one only finds that there are many more hills to climb. —Nelson Mandela.
